Clean California Gateway Features & Mural Project
Stakeholder Engagement
Overview

The Arts Council conducted a four-week stakeholder engagement process inviting community members to offer feedback for the Caltrans Clean California Mariposa Gateway and Mural Project. A variety of accessible feedback channels were created for stakeholders, including an online form, in-person public events for the general public, special events for tribal elders, and digital media platforms. This document provides detailed information about this public engagement process and presents the feedback collected. Additional documentation can be accessed by contacting Arts Council staff.

Arts council, county working to bring town entryways to new life

Editor’s note: This is the sixth in an eight-part series about the Mariposa County Arts Council. The stories will appear monthly through the end of the year.

By GREG LITTLE

Celligo, executive director of the council, “We are fortunate to have their collaboration and partnering to bring to bear on these types of projects,” said Miller, Treasures, senior community design and development planner for the Mariposa County Planning Department.

The project at hand is something that has been anticipated for many years.

It finally broke through to have two large-scale mural projects at both ends of Mariposa. Both of these ends are part of the project.

Goger said the overall concept is the projects will be designed “in dialogue with the gateway features in order to tell a welcoming and cohesive story focused on Mariposa’s natural landscapes and cultural history.”

What is a big, daunting task given the rich history of this county, from the Sanftelt Sierra Mission Nation to the Gold Rush era to the development of tourism to Yosemite National Park, which has turned into the heart and soul of the county — including its financial stability.

A major component within the project is the work of the county’s Creative Placemaking Advisory Committee, which has been working for several years in an effort to promote local arts, but the overall concept of how they progress when it comes to welcoming visitors.

Goger said that group has, for the last five years, been a place where the arts council and county can work in harmony, complementing the expertise of each group in developing such plans.

It now appears it is paying off with the development of the gateway projects.

The county has listed Altar Ledge as a consulting firm on the project. Altar Ledge is based in Sacramento and has a long history of working on similar projects around the state.

In this case, the finding is already in place, Goger said and this is where the arts council can really dig in and provide expertise that is needed. She also emphasized this project is deep in scope because there are so many requirements which have to be met through Caltrans.

The arts council, she said, is working on partnering with various groups as well as getting as much public input as possible.

“They are doing a great job at helping to develop the approach of how we can get the input from the most amount of people and get insights from a cross-section of the community,” said Goger.

Goger said currently, the consulting firm is working on extensive research in order to develop an overall concept for what the gateway features will look like, which she said is crucial. That firm, along with Ink Dwel, which specializes in projects like this, will come back with a “handful of preliminary design concepts.”

Once that happens, she said the arts council will go full speed ahead on engaging the community. That will include in-person and online opportunities for community members to provide their thoughts on those initial design concepts.

She said feedback from the public will be a crucial part of the final design.

Goger said there are many aspects to this project because it involves Caltrans, which maintains the public rights-of-way throughout the state.

But even from a regulatory standpoint, said Goralnik, it is crucial to “make sure they are artful and beautiful and the community is happy with them.”

He added the final design also has to ensure the welcoming murals and related materials “are safe and aligned with the state’s requirements for traffic safety, pedestrian safety and visibility.”

“The arts council is thrilled to be supporting the community engagement portion of this project,” said Goger.

“This is an incredible opportunity to bring large-scale public art to the community, but we want to ensure it reflects our community in a way that propels us forward, celebrates our cultural heritage and further expression of our natural landscapes and cultural history.”

Goger said “public art can be tricky” but added she felt she has a team of designers and artists who are dedicated to the project.

They will also engage community members “to provide their input and ideas” about the project.

Goger also said initial contacts with people in the arts community have been “amazing” about the project.

She also believes the work that has been done by the creative placemaking committee is now showing how groups like the arts council can partner with govern-

For Immediate Release

The Mariposa Arts Council and the County Planning Department invite the public to review and share feedback on initial concepts for Mariposa County’s Caltrans’ Clean California public art project. Located in the town of Mariposa, this project entails two gateway features located at the southern and northern intersections of Highway 140 and Highway 49 and two murals.

The proposed gateway features and murals will explore Mariposa’s native ecological systems and the connection between people and place. This project is in alignment with the Mariposa County’s Creative Placemaking Strategy and directly supports priority recommendations in the plan.

To execute this project, the County has engaged Atlas Lab Inc., a landscape architecture, urban design and public art practice firm who have previously worked with both the County and the Arts Council to develop the County’s Creative Placemaking Strategy. Atlas Lab will be designing the gateway features and managing the project’s team and timeline. Ink Dwell Studio, an renowned studio located in Half Moon Bay known for its murals that explore the beauty and complexity of nature, has been hired to develop and install the murals. Engineering firm Provost and Pritchard is overseeing the project’s technical aspects, including issues associated with highway safety and permitting, and the Arts Council is facilitating stakeholder engagement.

Because these projects will exist in the public realm, public investment in the project is critical and the artists and designers are seeking robust feedback from the community to inform their final designs. To facilitate public stakeholder engagement, between January 18 and February 17, 2023, the Arts Council has developed a variety of in-person and online opportunities for people to submit feedback. These opportunities are as follows:

Visit the Arts Council or Mariposa Public Library, between January 18 and February 17, 2023, at your convenience:

- Stop by the Arts Council where preliminary draft concepts and explanatory text will be on physical display. The public is encouraged to visit the Arts Council to talk with staff about the project and provide in-person feedback. The Arts Council is open Monday–Friday from 10am–4pm and is located at 5009 Highway 140, above Chocolate Soup.
Stop by the Mariposa Public Library - where preliminary draft concepts and explanatory text will be on physical display. Library staff will be available to talk about the project on Thursday afternoons. The Library is open Tuesday-Thursday from 9am-7pm and Friday-Monday from 9am-4pm and is located at 4978 10th St.

Stop by one of our pop-up events happening in downtown Mariposa (near the sites for the gateway features and murals) and talk with Arts Council staff about the project and offer in-person feedback.

Sticks Coffee (4993 7th Street) - Saturday, February 4, 9:00-11:30 AM
Pioneer Market (5034 Coakley Circle) - Saturday, February 4, 1-4 PM
The Grove House (4993 5th Street) - Thursday, February 2, 5-7 PM
The Alley (5027 Highway 140) - Tuesday, February 7, 5-7 PM

Attend special programming with opportunities for in-depth discussion of this project by Arts Council staff.
- Miwumati Healing Center - January 25 from 11am-4pm (specific for tribal stakeholder engagement)
- Mariposa County Library (4978 10th Street) - Special presentation on February 9 at 5:30 PM.

Additional information about project context, funding and team:

Mariposa County Planning Department - Caltrans Clean CA Initiative funding recipient and project lead.

Mariposa County Creative Placemaking Strategy - Adopted by the Mariposa County Board of Supervisors in 2021, the Mariposa County’s Creative Placemaking Strategy promotes the county’s economic, ecological, social, and cultural vitality, balancing historic narratives with contemporary ones and reflects the community’s richness and diversity. By engaging artists and embedding artistic practice into the community experience, the Strategy will support a culture of creativity that contributes to livability in Mariposa County. The Mariposa County Creative Placemaking Strategy recommends specific artistic interventions that adhere to and honor the following creative placemaking and placekeeping values:

- Articulate and deepen the connections that Mariposa County residents feel to each other and their community;
- Reflect the county’s diverse range of perspectives and experiences;
- Inspire interaction, curiosity and inquiry;

- Expand our community’s comfort with and capacity for creativity and expression

Caltrans Clean California Initiative - Clean California provides funds to clean and beautify public spaces in underserved communities by providing financial support to local and regional public agencies, transit agencies, tribal governments and nonprofit organizations.

Atlas Lab Inc. - Atlas Lab’s mission is to design, build and advocate for conscious change in the built environment to make accessible, positive and progressive impacts on communities. They create with purpose and build progressive change within communities. The way people understand their environment and interact in a space is the foundation for everything they do. They are extremely passionate about making healthy environments accessible to all and bringing humanistic and artistic design solutions to communities that are historically, culturally and ecologically responsive.

Ink Dwell Studio - Ink Dwell studio creates art that explores the beauty and complexity of nature. Merging classical techniques of science illustration with modern fine art to create public and private commissions, paintings, visual art, illustrations, exhibitions and much more. Ink Dwell makes everyday places special and enhances iconic locations with wondrous imagery. Ink Dwell's co-founder and principal artist is Jane Kim, who received a BFA in Printmaking from RISD and then attended California State University Monterey Bay, where she received a master’s certificate in science illustration. She has created large-scale public art across the country, including the Wall of Birds at The Cornell Lab of Ornithology, and produced works for the National Aquarium, the de Young Museum, Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum, and more. She is the creator of the Migrating Mural campaign, a series of public installations that highlight wildlife along migration corridors it shares with people.

Provost and Pritchard - Provost & Pritchard in an engineering consulting group, working to transform concepts into livable, workable solutions that ultimately improve the infrastructure for the lands and communities throughout California in the field of: civil and agricultural engineering, environmental engineering, hydrogeology, planning, and construction management.

Mariposa Arts Council - The Mariposa County Arts Council, Inc. (Arts Council) is honored to serve as Mariposa County’s local arts agency and its designated State Local Partner to the California Arts Council. The Arts Council’s mission is to promote and support all forms of the cultural arts, for all ages, throughout Mariposa County and their work is situated at the intersection of cultural and civic life. Specifically, the Arts Council works to inclusively support the social, cultural, ecological, and economic vitality of Mariposa County through the arts.

The Arts Council is an incorporated not-for-profit organization, created to promote and support all forms of the cultural arts, for all ages, throughout Mariposa County and is supported in part by the County of Mariposa, the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency, and the California Arts Council, a state agency.

ABOUT THE PROJECT

Mariposa County has been awarded funding from CalTrans Clean CA statewide initiative for a new public art project: Two gateway features at Mariposa’s main highway intersections, and two murals on prominent buildings in town.

The project team - planners, designers, and artists contracted by the County - are exploring themes that reflect Mariposas’ relationship with the natural landscapes that are important to the identity and sense of place of our community. Preliminary design concepts are ready to view and need public input now!

Social Media

The Arts Council, Atlas Lab, Ink Dwell Studios and Mariposa County engaged a wide range of followers through concurrent Instagram and Facebook posts using a suite of graphic material focused on stakeholder engagement opportunities.
Physical Engagement Sites

The Arts Council established two temporary exhibitions and hosted multiple pop-up events at key community-activated locations throughout the town of Mariposa in order to maximize outreach and provide equitable engagement opportunities to stakeholders.

Temporary Exhibitions: Jan 18 - Feb 17
- Mariposa Arts Council
- Mariposa County Library
- American Indian Council of Mariposa County/Southern Sierra Miwuk’s Miwumati Healing Center

Pop-Up Events: Feb 2 - 7
- The Grove House
- Sticks Coffee
- Pioneer Market
- The Alley

Special Outreach
- Elders Luncheon - Jan. 25, Miwumati Healing Center (Tribal Engagement)
- Community Conversation - Feb. 9, Mariposa County Library
- Youth Engagement - Feb. 9, Mariposa County High School and Ethos Youth Center
- Creative Placemaking Advisory Committee and Historic Sites Committee - Feb. 13
Arts Council Installation

Mariposa Arts Council's gallery space offered a primary project site where community members could stop by at their convenience or during business hours to talk directly with staff and explore large-scale posters featuring precedent images, design concepts and mock-ups generated by Atlas Lab and Ink Dwell Studio. Supported by interpretive and thematic material, this installation provided a convenient and simple opportunity to talk with staff and leave written feedback.

- 21 detailed posters
- Opportunities to give feedback
- Direct conversation with project team
- Support material about the Miwuk
- Tactile additions: Flicker feathers, black acorns, elderberry & willow sticks.

Public Outreach

County Library Installation & Community Conversation

The library’s display wall offered an easily accessible community space where visitors were invited to explore posters featuring precedent images, design concepts and mock-ups generated by Atlas Lab and Ink Dwell Studio. The installation was supported by library staff. On-site computers, take-home material, and feedback forms invited the public to submit feedback at their leisure. On Feb. 9, Arts Council staff held a community conversation where attendees discussed the project within the context of larger county policy (Creative Placemaking Strategy.) The library provided reading recommendations on contemporary tribal histories, community design and public art.
Southern Sierra Miwuk Stakeholder Engagement

Clay River attended the monthly Miwuk Elder's Luncheon at Miwumati Healing Center as a guest presenter at their luncheon on Jan. 25 to ensure the inter-generational tribal representation had access to project information. Concretely capturing their feedback was set as a high priority, since not all tribal members have access to online platforms. River continued to hold in-person conversations with tribal members as they came through the Healing Center, where project posters and feedback forms stayed as a temporary installation throughout the month-long stakeholder engagement series.
Pop-Up Events

Between Feb 2 - 7, Arts Council staff set up pop-up, in-person feedback opportunities at high traffic public location near the proposed mural and gateway sites (coffee shops, restaurants, music venues, markets) with posters, interpretive material and feedback forms to introduce a general population to design concepts and invite their input.

Feedback Data

Overview

Data from stakeholder engagement responses suggests the outreach process succeeded in generating wide ranging participation from community members of all ages. Of note, most respondents provided ample feedback and demonstrated rich community investment in the project overall.

Physical Forms: 183

Online Survey: 51

234 Total Responses
The overwhelming majority of all respondents expressed support for each concept, either by direct approval with no suggestions or with positive suggestions and thoughtful commentary via written response. Less than 10% of submitted comments were unsupportive. The aggregate percentage of supportive comments per concept are 95.3% for Flicker Feathers; 89.3% for Clapper Sticks and 88.8% for Acorn Granaries.

Supportive
- Had nothing to add
- Enthusiastic statements of support
- Offered thoughtful ideas or suggestions
- Expressed interest in mixing and matching this concept with elements of the other concepts presented

Critical
- Expressed concerns/do not support this concept
